Fluctuation in the number of cases eported and the number of influenza and pneumonia deaths, health department officials said today, is to be expected, and an increase in the number of cases reported, as well as in the number of deaths, may be expected if today's brand of weather persists for any length of time. Armistice November 11 Finds 283,-240 Beds in Camps and Base Hospitals, With 100,000 Vacant.

> GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, AMER-ICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, December 10 (Correspondence of the Associated Press).-The prodigious effort of the medical department in the Army in France is revealed in statistics which the Associated Press is now permitted to make public. When, on November 11, the armistice suspended hostilities and the great expansion and extension work of the medical department was suspended there were in operation 283,240 beds n camp and base hospitals and con-calescent camps, with about 100,000 walescent camps, with about 100,000 of them vacant.

There were on duty in the American expeditionary force at that time 12,-889 doctors and 8,593 nurses. The authorized nurse strength of the Army when America entered the war was 206, and of doctors, 300—figures that testify to the work the medical corps was called upon to perform.

Apportionment Interesting. The hospitalization of the Army in France is interesting. Basically it consists of mobile organizations. To each division there are four field hospitals, two evacuation bospitals and one mobile surgical hospital, and, in addition, there is fixed hospitalization, consisting of camp and base outfits and convalescent camps, with an authorized bed capacity of 15 per cent of the strength of the command.

There are now 85 camp hospitals tion, consisting of camp and base outfits and convalescent camps, with an authorized bed capacity of 15 per cent of the strength of the command.
There are now 85 camp hospitals
serving training and billeting areas,
while for general service and for the treatment of more serious cases and battle casualties there are 115 base hospitals. These base hospitals occasignally are single institutions of sionally are single institutions of from 1,000 to 3,000 beds, or are group-ed in hospital centers. Twenty such centers of from 2,500 to 15,000 beds

Convalescent Camp Service. Convalescent camps at the bed rate of 20 per cent of normal hospital beds are authorized for the purpose of giving as early graduated physi-cal training as possible, and fifteen such camps are in operation at present.

The American hospitals are partly in French barracks, school buildings and hotels and partly in constructed cantonments of demountable buildings. All the buildings taken over were remodeled and outfitted for the purpose, lighted and heated and modernized, while the demountable huts are models of their kind.
